From 6 to 7 June 2024, the “Réseau Africain pour le Développement Durable et Intégré (RADDI)”, a network of ERAIFT alumni, ERAIFT, and Olive People, a human resources consulting firm, held the third edition of the ‘Impact Job Days’ recruitment and training fair, in presence and by videoconference. The forum brought together more than 100 participants at ERAIFT and Silikin Village, including students from the 5th Master's class in training, ERAIFT alumni from the African Network for Sustainable and Integrated Development (RADDI) and several young graduates from Democratic Republic of Congo looking to improve their employability.

The event had two objectives: (1) to enable potential recruiters and talented young people to meet and discuss the needs of the professional world, and (2) to inform and discuss trends in the job sector and the best strategies for improving employability and professional development.

The forum was launched by Professor Baudouin MICHEL, Director of ERAIFT, who highlighted the importance of ‘soft skills’ for employers, and the need for young African graduates to improve their personal skills.

Discussions with the professionals invited focused on the use of artificial intelligence (AI) in the working life, the basic conditions for improving employability, building a corporate culture, the conservation professions of the future and career opportunities at WCS, professions, jobs and entrepreneurship, climate finance, financing development projects.

RADDI, ERAIFT, Olive People thank all the speakers, namely Alliance PEMOSSO, “Plantation et Huilleries du Congo (PHC)”, the Wildlife Conservation Society (WCS) and all the other experts for the practical and constructive exchanges aimed at improving the employability of young African graduates. ERAIFT would also like to thank Mr Patrick GAINCKO, People and Organisation MANAGER, for his support in preparing and organising this third Job Day. RADDI, ERAIFT and Olive People thank SILIKIN (Texaf group) for its warm welcome and technical support. ERAIFT also expresses its gratitude to the European Union, AGRINATURA, UNESCO and all the other technical and financial partners for their support.
